Letter Writing

Take A Moment, Write A Note, Make A Difference

In a world filled with noise and fast-paced digital communication, a personal letter carries a unique and powerful impact. Whether it's a message of hope, a thought of positivity, or a heartfelt hello, writing letters is a meaningful way to connect with others and drive real change. Letter writing campaigns remind us that our words have the power to uplift, influence, inspire, and support those who may feel forgotten or need a smile.

In your Club Kit, you will find some note cards and envelopes. You can find a way to use the letter writing kit any way your club would like. Just a reminder to follow your school's guidelines. We suggest that you use your school's return address (not a personal return address), your first name only when signing, and no contact information on the letters you write.

1. Write Letters of Thanks to Your School Community

- Purpose: Surprise those you see around campus, administrators, cafeteria workers, bus drivers, teachers, coaches, and support staff with heartfelt letters of appreciation and thanks for all they do, and drop them off once completed.
- Inspiration: Consider writing about how they've made a difference, helped you feel safe, or inspired you. A few kind words can go a long way.

2. Letters Against Isolation

- Purpose: Write letters to isolated seniors in care homes to combat loneliness. They provide clear guidelines, example letters, and have a sign up process for more information on their website.

4. The Birthday Party Project

- Purpose: Write birthday cards or notes for children experiencing homelessness.
- Website: www.thebirthdaypartyproject.org

5. A Million Thanks

- Purpose: Send thank-you letters to active-duty military and veterans. They offer mailing instructions, content suggestions, and FAQs.
- Website: www.amillionthanks.org

6. More Love Letters

- Purpose: Uplift strangers through anonymous, heartfelt letters of encouragement. They post specific letter requests (called "letter bundles") with stories and mailing details.
- Website: www.moreloveletters.com

7. Operation Gratitude

- Purpose: Write letters to deployed troops, veterans, and first responders. They provide detailed guidelines and mailing instructions.
- Website: www.operationgratitude.com/letters

8. Girls Love Mail Breast Cancer Letter Campaign

- Purpose: Write handwritten letters for women going through breast cancer treatments to send them love, encouragement, and support. They provide templates and have a simple submission process.
